INTRODUCTION

• As nowadays many people are going through depression and stress and they need someone whom they can talk and share their thoughts. So we made this platform where they can freely write about themselves and save their memories and store them for future reference. Apart from that they can also save any image and video of them too. Basically this project is based on someone's healthcare by providing them with a companion whom they can trust.

PROBLEMIT SOLVES

 Relive is a platform where anybody can store their good bad memories, and relive them in the future. In the past social media, applications were built to share your experience and memories with everyone but Nowadays social media are the platform of show-off rather than sharing our experiences, hence it lost its original meaning. Relive solve this by allowing you to store memories and only share them with others if you want to. This allows people to store their memories without have fear of being judged.
